

CEBI Michaelmas Seminar Series 2017

All lectures in the CEBI Michaelmas seminar series will begin at 16:00 lasting for 45-60 minutes and will be followed by roughly 30 minutes of questions and discussion. They will each be held in the Violet Butler Room at Barnett House, 32 Wellington Square, Oxford. For directions please see: <https://www.spi.ox.ac.uk/about-us/contact-us.html>

Week 1 – Thursday 12th October, 2017, 4:00 PM

Dr. Vittal Katikireddi, University of Glasgow

'Establishing causality for population health and health policy'

Week 2 – Thursday 19th October, 2017, 4:00 PM

Prof. Sally Merry, University of Auckland

'Delivering and evaluating e-mental health for young people at scale'

Week 3 – Thursday 26th October, 2017, 5:00 PM

Sidney Ball Lecture 2017

Prof. David Spiegelhalter, University of Cambridge

'Why should we have trust in numbers? Making evidence more reliable and empowering people to check it'

Week 4– Thursday 2nd November, 2017, 4:00 PM

Prof. David Kirk, University of Oxford

'A randomised controlled trial of residential change and criminal recidivism'

Week 5 – Thursday 9th November, 2017, 4:00 PM

Prof. Neil Humphrey, University of Manchester

'Randomised controlled trials in schools: blunt instrument or better by design?'

Week 7 – Thursday 23rd November, 2017, 4:00 PM

Dr. James White, Cardiff University

'Improving mental health through the regeneration of deprived neighborhoods: a natural experiment'

Week 8 – Thursday 30th November, 2017, 4:00 PM

Dr. Martin Williams, University of Oxford

'External validity and policy adaptation: from impact evaluation to policy design'